California ISO News Conference Today

The California Independent System Operator is conducting a vigorous internal investigation into inappropriate communication that occurred between an ISO control room employee and a market participant during trading activity last summer. In keeping with the ISO's policy of being as open and accessible as possible, it will hold a news conference this afternoon to notify the media regarding what appears to be an isolated incident and the steps the ISO is taking to prevent such improper communication from occurring in the future.

Charles Robinson, General Counsel ISO, will lead the news conference.

Local news agencies may attend in person if they wish by checking in at the California ISO in Building 101, Blue Ravine Road, Folsom California.
