II. BACKGROUND

On June 29, 2000, Sierra Pacific Power Company and Nevada Power Company (collectively "the Companies") tendered for filing revised tariff sheets for their Joint Open Access Transmission Tariff ("Joint OATT") to address energy imbalances and generation imbalances and to implement generation interconnection procedures. The Companies assert that the proposed energy imbalance and generation imbalance provisions have been made necessary by recent problems related to high market prices in the California markets.¹ The Companies claim that these recent high prices have created incentives for some entities to attempt to game the system by making sales to California in excess of their generation, with the Companies making up the deficiencies between scheduled deliveries of power and actual deliveries of power at imbalance charges below the cost of that power. These entities then allegedly sell the energy provided to them by the Companies and pocket the difference between the market price in California and the lower imbalance energy charge permitted under the Joint OATT.²

III. BASIS FOR MOTION TO INTERVENE

The ISO is a non-profit public benefit corporation organized under the laws of the State of California and responsible for the reliable operation of a grid comprising the transmission systems of Pacific Gas & Electric Company, San Diego Gas & Electric Company, and Southern California Edison Company, as well as for the coordination of the competitive electricity market in California. As the operator of this grid, the ISO has a unique interest in any Commission proceeding concerning tariff provisions that may affect electricity sales to California. Accordingly, since the tariff revisions proposed by the Companies may affect electricity sales to California, the ISO requests that it be permitted to intervene herein with full rights as a party.

The ISO raises no substantive issues at the present time but reserves the right to do so regarding any further aspects of the proceeding ordered by the Commission. The ISO also reserves the right to file supplemental comments if warranted.
