Report on Market Impacts of Amendment 66: "As-Bid" Settlement of Pre-dispatched Inter-tie Bids for Real Time Energy

Prepared by the Department of Market Analysis California Independent System Operator August 5, 2005

Background

In Amendment No. 66, the California Independent System Operator ("CAISO") proposed to modify the CAISO Tariff so that bids for incremental and decremental energy on inter-ties with neighboring control areas that are pre-dispatched by the CAISO are settled under a "pay as bid" rule. With this modification, bids would be paid (or pay the CAISO) their original bid price, rather than the "bid or better" in effect since October 1, 2004. <sup>1</sup>

In its April 7, 2005 order on Amendment No. 66, the Federal Regulatory Energy Commission ("Commission") approved the "pay as bid" settlement rule effective as of March 24 until the earlier of September 30, 2005 or the effective date of a long-term solution filed and accepted by the Commission.<sup>2</sup> The Commission also ordered the CAISO's Department of Market Analysis ("DMA") to file weekly reports on the market effects of these interim tariff provisions, including "the liquidity and sufficiency of bids at the inter-ties" until the earlier of the effective date of a future tariff change implementing a long-term solution or September 30, 2005.

The following report is submitted by DMA in response to the above directive in the Commission's Order on Amendment 66. This weekly report includes additional data for the week of July 23 - 29.

Report Findings

Cost Impacts of Amendment No. 66

Figures 1 and 2 summarize total energy pre-dispatched by the CAISO for market clearing versus CAISO system demand for energy, and the costs associated with overlapping (or off-setting) incremental ("inc") and decremental ("dec") bids dispatched to clear the market. Table 1 summarizes these same data by week since implementation of Phase 1B on October 1, 2004.

As shown in Figure 1, the amount of overlapping inc and dec bids cleared by the CAISO dropped dramatically as soon as the CAISO moved from the "bid or better" settlement rule to the "as bid" settlement rule. Since the effective date of Amendment 66, an average of only about 27 MW of off-setting inc and dec bids have been pre-dispatched each hour, as opposed to an average of about 600 MW per hour in the month prior to implementation of Amendment 66. During the week of July 23-29, an average of about 50 MW of off-setting inc and dec bids have been pre-dispatched each hour to clear the market.

&lt;sup>1</sup> Under the "bid or better" settlement rule, inter-tie bids for incremental energy pre-dispatched by the CAISO prior to each operating hour were paid the higher of their bid price or the ex post real time market clearing price. Inter-tie bids for decremental energy pre-dispatched by the CAISO paid the lower of their bid price or the ex post real time market clearing price. See Amendment No. 66 Transmittal Letter.

&lt;sup>3</sup> The 7-day lag between the most recent data in this report and the filing date of this report reflects the time needed for post-operational checks and changes done as part of the CAISO settlement process, as well as time needed to prepare and review the report.

(By Day, Before and After Amendment 66)

Figure 3 summarizes the total cost of net incremental energy purchased by the CAISO for CAISO system needs (i.e. net energy pre-dispatched when the sum of all pre-dispatched bids was positive, indicating the CAISO was a net purchaser of imbalance energy in the pre-dispatch process). As shown in Figure 3, the average price paid for pre-dispatched incremental energy decreased to about $52/MWh during the week of July 23-29. The weighed average price of incremental energy pre-dispatched by the CAISO calculated at the ex post price in the CAISO's real time market was also about $53/MWh during this period. The weighted average price reported for hourly spot market transactions in bilateral markets (Powerdex) during hours when the CAISO was a net importer of pre-dispatched energy was about $60/MWh.

Figure 4 summarizes the total cost of net decremental energy sold by the CAISO for system needs (i.e. net energy pre-dispatched when the sum of all pre-dispatched bids was negative, indicating the CAISO was a net seller of imbalance energy in the pre-dispatch process).

As shown in Figure 4, energy prices received by the CAISO for net decremental energy predispatched averaged about $42/MWh during the week of July 23-29. The weighed average price of this decremental energy pre-dispatched by the CAISO calculated at the ex post price in the CAISO's real time market was about $45/MWh. The weighted average price reported for hourly spot market transactions in bilateral markets (Powerdex) during hours when the CAISO was a net exporter of pre-dispatched energy was about $49/MWh.

Inter-tie Bid Sufficiency and Liquidity

Figure 5 shows the daily total volumes of incremental and decremental inter-tie bids during the period July 23-29, 2005 categorized by bid price levels. Figure 6 shows these same bid data, but highlights the average hourly volume of net incremental bids submitted during weekdays on a weekly basis. In addition, Figure 6 also includes a comparison of total incremental bid volumes this year to the most comparable five weekdays last year (i.e. the five weekdays last year most closely matching the weekday dates shown in Figure 6). The bid volumes from last year are shown by the blue shaded area behind the bars depicting bid volumes this year by bid price.

As shown in Figures 5 and 6, the volume of inter-tie bids received by the CAISO dropped slightly immediately after implementation of Amendment 66, but subsequently increased to a level almost equal to the volume of bids received during the week prior to implementation of Amendment 66 by the first week in May. The overall volume of incremental energy bids dropped during the first three weeks of May, but increased each of the last three weeks ending June 10. Since the first week of June, the overall volume of incremental energy bids has gradually dropped as loads increased throughout the west with the advent of warmer weather.

As noted in previous reports, the CAISO has not experienced problems in terms of bid insufficiency or liquidity of incremental energy import bids since the switch to an "as-bid" market under Amendment 66. However, in light of the recent decrease in import energy bids depicted in Figure 6, this report includes some additional analysis of overall trends in imports and import/export bid sufficiency.

Figures 7 and 8 provide a summary of the total supply of imports on a weekly basis, including average hourly imports scheduled by participants (Final Hour Ahead Schedules), plus incremental energy bids and pre-dispatched by the CAISO. <sup>4</sup> As shown in Figures 7, while the total volume of incremental energy import bids may have decreased since Amendment 66, the total overall supply of imports scheduled or bid into the ISO system has increased significantly over this time due to a significant increase in imports scheduled directly by participants. In addition, as shown in both Figure 7 and 8, the volume of incremental energy import bids has also remained extremely high relative to the quantity of import bids actually pre-dispatched by the CAISO.

Figure 9 provides a similar summary of the total supply of decremental energy bids on inter-ties (exports) since October 2004. Again, these data show that the volume of decremental energy bids on interties has also remained very high relative to the quantity of dec bids actually pre-dispatched by the ISO.

&lt;sup>4</sup> Analysis of import supplies is based on peak Hours Ending 13-20, while analysis of export (dec) bids and pre-dispatches is based on off-peak Hours Ending 1-8, following the time periods suggested by Powerex in a recent filing as the most appropriate hours for such analysis (Protest of Powerex Corp, filed on June 8, 2005 in protest of the ISO's Comprehensive Market Redesign Proposal, May 13, 2005, ER02-1656-026, pp 12-13).
